

Killam Health Centre

Killam Health Centre first began when the Sisters of St. Joseph renovated a brick house into a hospital in 1930. The Sisters served through a number of challenges, including staffing shortages during the Second World War and epidemics.

The last of the Sisters retired in 2003, but their commitment to treating each person with dignity and respect is carried forward by staff today, who provide residents of Flagstaff County with acute and continuing care.

Covenant family

The Covenant family contributes to the health and well-being of Albertans as three non-profit Catholic organizations rooted in a 156-year legacy of compassionate care and service in the province. At the heart of Catholic health care is a profound respect for the intrinsic value and dignity of every human being and an unwavering commitment to serving all people — from all backgrounds, faiths and circumstances — especially society's most vulnerable.

As sibling organizations, the three separate entities share the values and mission of the congregations of Sisters who founded health care in Alberta. As leaders and innovators in their fields, each organization contributes to a strategic plan to be of greater service and to transform the health care system and create vibrant communities of health and healing.
